Welcome

Welcome to the Artlink Summer Festival, celebrating 35 years of participatory excellence and community engagement in central Scotland. This year, we will be celebrating the many artists, community members, and individuals we have had the privilege of working with both currently and over the past years.

Since 1988, Artlink Central has been at the forefront of participatory arts in Scotland, creating innovative and accessible opportunities for individuals and communities facing complex issues.

We work in a variety of settings including hospitals, schools, prisons, and community-based settings, using the arts to remove barriers and promote inclusion. We are grateful to all those who have supported us over the years and look forward to continuing our work for many more decades to come.

Take a glimpse into the work we do, and join us for a series of workshops and interactive sessions designed to inspire, connect, and ignite creativity.

Sound & Vision - An Artreach Project

A central aim of the Artreach programme is giving people in the Stirling community with a learning disability, a supported choice to progress and develop within the arts in the longer term.

In this 3 workshop block we will begin to explore themes of space and place through art. We will be making visual representations of sounds, getting messy with paint, recording our voices and altering them and generally having a lot of fun with sounds and pictures!

We will explore the space of the Cowane Centre studios and think about spaces and places that have been important in our lives, making work that ties back to these themes
